

Welcome to the Feengrotten Restaurant

On May 31, 1914, the Saalfeld Feengrotten festively celebrated its opening as a display mine. Since then, more than 18 million visitors from all over the world have visited the site.

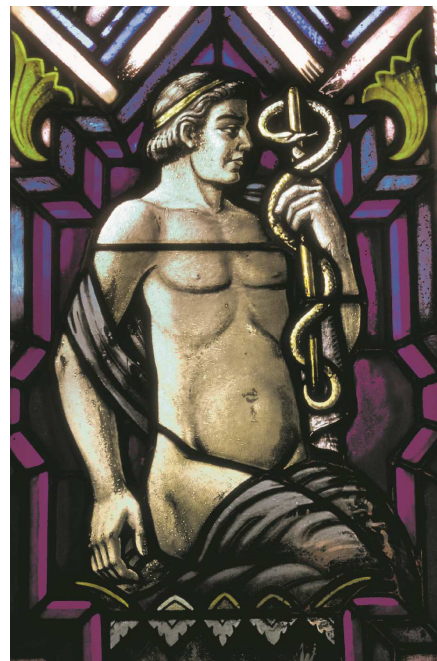

The Quellenhaus (Natural Spring Centre) was first opened in 1927 as a research institute for the remedial spring waters found in the area. The administration and research laboratories were located in the main building, while in the cellar, the Feengrotten's mineral waters were hermetically sealed in glass bottles.

Today, the Quellenhaus is home to the Saalfeld Feengrotten's administrative centre and the interactive Grottoneum Museum, as well as three guest rooms and a holiday apartment. The restaurant was originally designed as a ceremonial room. In 2011, it was completely renovated and a mural added, which is based on the lead-light glass mosaic featured in the Quellenhaus stairwell.

Thuringia's cuisine is famous far beyond the region's boundaries. Its uncontested highlights are Thuringian dumplings and Bratwurst – a spicy sausage served fresh from the grill.

We are proud to offer you the very best in Thuringian hospitality and wish you a pleasant meal.
